Mrs. Black Owned

“Mrs. Black Owned is a love letter to Black-owned beauty — an editorial archive, book series, and growing community built around one idea: ownership is the new luxury.”

Founded by beauty editorial writer and author Kay Martin, Mrs. Black Owned began as a personal archive of the Black and African-owned beauty and fragrance brands worth knowing — and worth supporting. That archive became All the Black-Owned, Babee!, an 85-page guide documenting the founders, formulas, and stories behind a new generation of beauty ownership.

What started as a book has grown into a platform: a website, and a social presence across Instagram, TikTok, Facebook, and Substack — plus a standing invitation to readers who want their beauty dollars to build legacy, not just look good on a shelf.

Every brand featured is vetted for authenticity, ownership, and craft. Every reader is here on purpose.

MARKET CONTEXT

Black-owned beauty remains one of the most culturally influential — and most underrepresented — segments of the industry. Mrs. Black Owned exists to close that gap: connecting intentional, culturally fluent consumers directly with the founders and formulas they're already looking for.
